German Language and the History of Emigration to North America

Starting in the 19th century, seven million emigrants undertook the journey from the harbour in Bremerhaven, Germany to North America. This major pathway of immigration is the main focus of this summer program on the history of emigration and the role of Bremen and Bremerhaven.

We will visit the German Emigration Center in Bremerhaven and learn more about the destiny of the emigrants in past centuries. You will be able to trace your own family history or the destiny of other emigrants as a part of an extended project work.

A historian will teach topics such as German history, the history of emigration, integration and multicultural issues. We will also look at what migrants experience today. In addition, there will be a rich cultural program through which we will explore Bremen and the vicinity.

Bremen is a cosmopolitan and multicultural city with 1,200 years of history. It is home to some 500,000 people. The University of Bremen was founded in 1971 and has around 19,000 students. The university is known for interdisciplinary study and research-oriented teaching projects. Research „made in Bremen“ has been at the top of higher education in Germany for many years now.
